BUSY SESSION HELD BY CITY COUNCIL

Equipment Bought For Street Department, Policeman Hired

The Murray City Council with Mayor Pro-Tem Leonard Vaughn presiding in the absence of Mayor Holmes Ellis last night opened bids for new equipment for the street department, hired a policeman, and heard the report on a new type light for the Five Points intersection.

Five bids were received and opened for the purchase of an oil distributor for the city street department. Three bids from local firms were also received on a dump truck for the department.

On the oil distributor, Brandeis Machinery bid $2475, Bogie Equipment Company $2516 on one model and $2566 on another, Rudd Construction & Equipment 2295, and Kentucky Machinery Company, $2757.45.

Taylor Motors bid $3387.02 on a Dodge truck, Truck Equipment Sales $3650 on an International truck, and Parker Motors $3485 on a Ford truck.

After a meeting of the street committee, the purchasing committee and Mayor Pro-Tem Leonard Vaughn, a recommendation to accept the low truck bid submitted by Taylor Motors and the bid of Brandeis Machinery on the oil distributor was approved. The bid by Brandeis was the lowest bid that met city specifications.

The reading of the bills of the general fund, Murray National Gas System, and the Murray Water and Sewer System was heard and approved.

First reading was given to an ordinance setting forth new qualifications for new members of the city police department.

Mayor Pro-Tem Leonard Vaughn announced that a new traffic control light will be erected by the State Highway Department at the Five Points intersection. The intersection at Five Points has been a serious traffic problem for some time.

As the term suggests the new light will be activated by approaching traffic. The light will show a green "go" to the approaches on Highway 121. Traffic approaching from the other three directions will "trip" a switch.

Report Made By Holmes Ellis On 1st Part Of European Trip

Mayor Holmes Ellis, General manager of the Western Dark Fired Tobacco Growers Association has concluded the first two weeks of a five week tour in Europe as a member of a delegation exploring the possibility of establishing Market Development Programs in Western Europe for the promotion of U. S. leaf tobacco.

Ellis and two other tobacco men left April 21st on the trip to promote the continued and further use of dark fired tobacco, the type grown in Calloway County, in European countries.

Accompanying Ellis on the trip are St. A. Mammack, General Manager of the Eastern Dark Fired Tobacco Growers Association, Springfield, Tennessee, and C. W. Malone, president of the Stemmington District Tobacco Association, Henderson, Kentucky.

Today Mayor Ellis is in Rome. He has visited London, Amsterdam, Paris, Zurich, Geneva, and Madrid, thus far in his travels. The following letter was received by the Ledger & Times from Paris, France, April 29, 1962.

Mr. Jim Williams
Ledger & Times
Murray, Kentucky

Dear Mr. Williams:
Though now in Paris, I want to report on the first country visited and the most important user of our tobacco—Holland. This small country, about the size of the First Congressional District of Kentucky, has a population of approximately 12,000,000 and is the dairy center of Europe.

The people are industrious, friendly and many speak English which was helpful on visiting the tobacco manufacturers. Holland imports about 40% of our Eastern and Western District fire-cured tobacco. The tobacco is finely cut and used for roll your own cigarettes and for pipes. Most of it is mixed with Blue-cured and called "Half & Half." The use of tobacco in this form, called "Shag" is increasing each year.

Capital Tour Follows Historic Meeting — Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov (right) climaxed a visit to Washington with a meeting with President at the White House. Prior to the meeting, Titov met America's premier spaceman John H. The Soviet and U.S. spacemen also zipped through such landmarks as the monument, the Lincoln Memorial, the Capitol and rocket exhibit at the Smithsonian Institute.

Rebels Defying Venezuela Head

By JAMES R. WHELAN

United Press International

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) —

Rebel marines who seized control of Carapano, 350 miles east of Caracas, refused to surrender today and columns of government troops began converging on the harbor ready for a coordinated land-sea assault.

The rebels, defying a demand by President Raul Betancourt to surrender or be crushed, said: "We shall not surrender, even if we are overpowered ten to one."

The President, determined to smash the revolt by pro-Castro revolutionaries, rushed army troops and loyal marines into the area from nearby cities.

Elements of the 1,000-man rebel force of marines held Carapano, a stronghold of Castro — Cuban sympathizers and extreme leftists.

Some 1,500 loyalist marines, dispatched by sea and air from La Guaira and Puerto Cabello to the city of Carapano, began moving toward Carapano — some 30 miles away — early this morning.

But rebel claims that roads, as well as beaches, around Carapano have been heavily mined caused the government forces to advance with caution.

The insurgents also claimed that Carapano's harbor was mined.

Three destroyers were standing outside the harbor limits with their guns trained on the rebel garrison and other vital areas.

Hundreds of local farmers and fishermen — loyal to the Betancourt government — followed advancing troops in trucks and cars. They carried shotguns, machetes and other weapons.

Other government troops were dispatched to the Carapano area from such cities as Maturin, Ciudad Bolivar and Cumana.

Reports received at the presidential Miraflores Palace here early today indicated the loyalist forces were moving in toward strategic points around Carapano to seal it off by land, as well as by sea.

Constitutional guarantees were suspended throughout the country under a decree announced Friday night. The guarantees had been restored only last month following a 14-month suspension resulting from similar anti-government activities.

Patience Exhausted

In a nationwide television-radio broadcast shortly before midnight, Betancourt said the government's patience with Communists and supporters of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro had been exhausted.

He reported the military buildup at Cumana, and said "in the first hours of tomorrow, the rebel battalion will be taken by assault."

"It would be better if they surrendered because the instructions my government has issued are precise and clear: proceed against these forces with firmness," he said.

Betancourt added that "now there will be the same energy, the same decisions, in dealing with those totalitarianists who try to create problems for the constitutional government."

This was interpreted in political circles as foreshadowing a severe government crackdown on troublemakers of the extreme left.

The uprising at Carapano was led by two naval officers identified as supporters and close friends of former provisional president, Rear Adm. Wolfgang Larrazabal.

They are Capt. Jose Teodoro Molina and Lt. Felipe Santiago Testamark, a former aide of Larrazabal.

The rebels seized Carapano, a city of 15,000 population, early Friday morning and proclaimed a "provisional government." After taking control of the radio station, they broadcast a demand Betancourt resign and said "the armed forces want to re-establish a really democratic Venezuela."

Fighting and air attacks were reported to have caused some casualties, but no figures were available by Friday midnight.

Larrazabal led the revolt which ousted de facto Marcos Perez Jimenez four years ago. The naval officer served as provisional president for a time, but was defeated by Betancourt in the 1958 presidential election.

The government claimed the leaders of the revolt were supporters of Castro, who has been at odds with the Betancourt administration for some time.

Calloway Farm Bureau Holds Meeting

The Calloway County Farm Bureau directors met this week for a regular monthly meeting. The meeting was opened with prayer led by Leon Chambers.

Billy Smith, president, presided over the business meeting. Mr. Chambers told the directors the rural fire committee is still working on the rural fire protection. He said the committee had met recently with the city council, and the council had been appointed by the fiscal court to investigate the possibilities of a plan for fire protection for the county.

Mr. Chambers said there would be a meeting of all three groups in the near future. He explained this was something that would necessitate a great deal of study and planning before any action could be taken.

S. V. Foy, county agent, explained more fully the extension office's plans for this year's Murray-Calloway County Fair. Farm Bureau has purchased two large tents for Extension and Farm Bureau use at the Fair. A committee was appointed to begin work on plans for a Farm Bureau information and exhibit tent.

The first order of Farm Bureau business was the extension office's order of business. Another order of business has been made, and the office should have these available for truck owners within the next few days. There should be enough available for every farm Bureau member who wishes to place these on their farm trucks. The enforcement of the law has made it necessary that every truck with farm license have "Farm Truck" plainly printed on both sides of the truck. Several farmers have been cited for not having done this.

The free decals have three inch lettering and are 22 1/2 inches in length, in compliance with the state requirement.

Ray T. Brouch, in explaining the insurance program, informed those present of the new state law which increases the minimum liability limits becoming effective July 1. He reminded the board that the $1,000,000 accidental death coverage on all Farm Bureau members covers husband, wife and all children under 19 years of age. There is no coverage, he said, unless death results from an accident with farm machinery.

Mrs. Barbara Wrathe, home agent, said the 4-H club work had been very nice this year. She also said there has been more enthusiasm in the Homemakers this spring.

Mrs. Ray T. Brouch, Woman's Chairman, suggested that any girl or boy who is a member of a Farm Bureau family and interested in being a contestant for Farm Bureau King or Queen should contact her, phone 489-2148, or the local office on Maple Street.

Boys must be between the ages of 16-19; girls must be between the ages of 15-18 to be eligible. The office also has applications for the Winn-Dixie scholarship awards. These are $1,000.00 awards presented annually to a deserving boy and girl from Farm Bureau families entering college in the fall as a freshman.

Delegation Of Women Appears Before Council With Petition

A delegation of Murray women appeared before the Murray City Council last night with a petition signed by several residents of the city and made a request for the council to pass an ordinance prohibiting dogs running loose in the city.

The action grew out of a series of incidents in which children have been attacked and bitten by dogs. The most recent incident was the attack on a ten year old girl riding her bike back to Robertson School at noon Thursday.

The council pointed out that there are state laws with strict requirements for dog owners. In the absence of Prosecuting Attorney Wade Crawford, City Attorney Wells Overbey briefly explained the state law.

Kentucky laws require owners to have their dogs vaccinated on or before July 1st of each year and as proof the dog must wear a metal tag bearing the vaccination certificate number.

In addition the law requires dogs to be licensed and wear a tag bearing a serial number, and peace officers shall seize and impound any dog which does not bear a license tag or other legible identification. If the dog can not be seized then the officer shall destroy the dog by any reasonable and humane means.

Dogs impounded are to be held for seven days and then disposed of if not claimed. KRS 258.235 states in part, "Any person may kill any dog which he sees in the act of pursuing, worrying or wounding any livestock, or wounding or killing poultry, or attacking human beings, whether or not such dog bears the license tag." State laws also require the owner of every dog to keep the dog confined or firmly secured during the hours of sunset and sunrise unless engaged in lawful hunting.

In view of the already existing state laws the council took no formal action on the delegation's request. However the opinion was voiced that the council should formally bring the matter to the attention of city officials.

The City of Murray does not have a dog warden or dog catcher. Ray Herndon is the county dog warden and has worked the past few days with city police in catching stray dogs in the vicinity of Robertson School.

Officers elected for 1962-64 are Mrs. Charlie Crawford, president; Mrs. Nix Crawford, vice-president; Mrs. Don Shelton, second vice; Mrs. Harry Wayne, secretary; Mrs. Carl Lockhart, treasurer; Mrs. Henry McKenzie, publicity chairman; Mrs. J. B. Wilson, new member of nominating committee for 1963.

Ladies from Murray Methodist, Presbyterian, Christian, Kirksey, Lynn Grove, Goshen, Episcopal, and North Pleasant Grove attended the meeting.

The ladies of the host church were in charge of the program with Mrs. Jack Belote as leader. The program topic, "One Family Under God: Who Is My Family?" was presented by Mrs. Henry McKenzie.

Special music was presented by Miss Sook Huh of Korea accompanied on the organ by Miss Saline Morris. Readers of the choral reading were Mrs. L. R. Hogan, Mrs. Carol Warren, Mrs. Ellen Harrell, Mrs. Edwin Larson, Mrs. Rex Hawkins, Mrs. Clell Peterson, and Miss Beatrice Frye.

Sealer Needed on Part Of Airport

The need for the application of a special sealer to the paved area around the ramp and gas pumps at Kyle Field was brought to the attention of the Calloway County Airport Board at its meeting yesterday.

Gasoline and oil from planes parked on the ramp or tie down area and small amounts dropping to the pavement during servicing and refueling are deteriorating the tar content of the pavement. As a result the rock loosens and crumbles.

It is a standard procedure to apply a special sealer or preventive solution to pavement subject to the effects of gasoline and oil. However federal specifications do not call for such.

The board decided to purchase a small amount of one of the cheaper sealers and use it around the gas tanks as an experimental measure. If satisfactory results are obtained then an effort will be made to cover the entire area where it is needed.

The Board's agreement with the contractor calls for 90 per cent payment upon completion of the remaining 10 per cent upon final federal approval. Federal approval can be expected once the seeding work done has met specifications.

M & H has already received payment of about $91,000 of the total $104,000 construction costs.

The corn base on the property has been put in the soil bank and the 29 acre tobacco base rented at $5 per tenth of an acre.

Fontaine, Assistant Commissioner of Aeronautics, requesting a sketch of the fence and building which has now been prepared.

A representative of the Federal Aviation Agency and Air Traffic Control visited Kyle Field recently and was highly complimentary of the work that has been done to date and the future potential of the airport.

The Board delayed action on an offer by a local firm to purchase the timber on the airport property. The services of a forester will be secured to evaluate the timber.

Tentative plans to obtain a rotating beacon light for the field were postponed after a study revealed that a light that would meet federal approval would cost a minimum of $500.

In other action the Board gave its approval to make a payment of approximately $2600 to M & H Construction Company, general contractor for the construction of the airport.

SPORTS PARADE

NEW YORK (UP) — Fearless

Fraley's facts and figures: It isn't often that anybody in boxing deserves a rousing round of applause but the New York State Athletic Commission rates a series of bouts for turning down Charles Liston's application for a license to meet Floyd Patterson for the heavyweight title.

The fight will go on somewhere, and that's for sure. But New York's boxing officials won't have been contributing factors to the chance that an unreluctant hoodlum becomes one of our children's sports idols.

Whether or not Liston is rehabilitated remains to be seen. But it's a miracle of less than a year's standing, if so, and less than that if you can believe reports of his occasional public language.

"There's no reason to think that Liston might not get a license," promoter Tom Bolan said when Liston was about to apply.

It was a blackjack, pure and simple. Those trying to put the bout across obviously felt that money makes up for anything and that in an election year the solons wouldn't dare turn them down. The state that finally does sanction the match probably would grant a license to Jack the Ripper, too.

It will be interesting to note how Paul Brown pitches for the Phillies against the New York Mets on Sunday. The 20-year-old right-hander was regarded as the Phillies' hottest prospect this year but missed most of spring training because of hepatitis. He is coming back much sooner than expected. If he can't beat the hapless Mets he'd better take a bit more time to get ready.

Opposing Pitchers Only Ones Suffering From The Rivalry Between Willie Mays And Cepeda

By NORMAN MILLER

United Press International

It's been whispered that there is more than just a little professional rivalry between Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda of the San Francisco Giants, but the only ones suffering from it are the opposing pitchers.

As the Giants streak away to a great start that now has produced 10 straight victories, it appears as though these two powerful right-handed hitters are staging a private battle for the Most Valuable Player award.

It was Cepeda's turn to be the hero Friday. He drove in five runs with a homer, double and single as the Giants drubbed the Chicago Cubs, 11-6.

The Boston Red Sox struck the loudest thunder in the American League when they scored 12 runs in the fifth inning to drub the Chicago White Sox, 13-6.

During the Giants' 10-game winning streak which has opened a 21-game lead in the National League race, either Cepeda or Mays has hit a home run or driven in the key runs in every game except one.

And during that tear, Cepeda has batted an even 400, hit five homers and two doubles and driven in 18 runs on 16 hits. Mays has hit 333 with four homers (one a grand slam), a triple and a double, and 12 RBI on 12 hits.

Larsen Relieves Pierce

A San Francisco starter needed

Pinch-hitter Bob Skinner drove in the Pirates' winning run with a bases-loaded single in the ninth inning against the Dodgers. The Dodgers, trailing 4-0, knocked out Bob Friend with three runs in the eighth and tied the score in the ninth on Lee Walls' sacrifice fly.

Young Joe Moeller loaded the bases in the last of the ninth and gave way to Ron Perranoski, who yielded Skinner's game-winning hit. Roy Face was credited with his first victory.

At Philadelphia, Dallas Green pitched his way out of a bases-loaded, no-out line in the ninth to gain the win over the Mets. Gil relief for the first time in eight games when Don Larsen was summoned from the bullpen to take over for Bill Pierce in the seventh. Pierce, however, received credit for his fourth win without a defeat. Cepeda's homer was his eighth. Billy Williams hit a homer and triple for Chicago.

Besides the Red Sox' victory over the White Sox in the American League, the Cleveland Indians edged the Kansas City Athletics, 6-5; the Los Angeles Angels beat the Baltimore Orioles, 5-4, and the Minnesota Twins topped the Detroit Tigers, 4-2, in a day game.

The New York Yankees and Washington Senators were idle.

Lefty Jim O'Toole pitched a five-hitter and Frank Robinson, Leo Cardenas and Wada Pinson hit Cincinnati homers off the Cardinals' Larry Jackson. O'Toole reined in three straight batters at one stretch. Gene Oliver homered in the ninth for St. Louis.

Skinner's Single Wins

Pinch-hitter Bob Skinner drove in the Pirates' winning run with a bases-loaded single in the ninth inning against the Dodgers. The Dodgers, trailing 4-0, knocked out Bob Friend with three runs in the eighth and tied the score in the ninth on Lee Walls' sacrifice fly.

Young Joe Moeller loaded the bases in the last of the ninth and gave way to Ron Perranoski, who yielded Skinner's game-winning hit. Roy Face was credited with his first victory.

It's been whispered that there is more than just a little professional rivalry between Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda of the San Francisco Giants, but the only ones suffering from it are the opposing pitchers.

As the Giants streak away to a great start that now has produced 10 straight victories, it appears as though these two powerful right-handed hitters are staging a private battle for the Most Valuable Player award.

It was Cepeda's turn to be the hero Friday. He drove in five runs with a homer, double and single as the Giants drubbed the Chicago Cubs, 11-6.

The Boston Red Sox struck the loudest thunder in the American League when they scored 12 runs in the fifth inning to drub the Chicago White Sox, 13-6.

During the Giants' 10-game winning streak which has opened a 21-game lead in the National League race, either Cepeda or Mays has hit a home run or driven in the key runs in every game except one.

And during that tear, Cepeda has batted an even 400, hit five homers and two doubles and driven in 18 runs on 16 hits. Mays has hit 333 with four homers (one a grand slam), a triple and a double, and 12 RBI on 12 hits.

At least 50 per cent of all the millions of medical and surgical cases treated by private doctors and hospitals have a mental illness complication. With good care and treatment, at least 7 out of 10 patients can leave mental hospitals partially or totally recovered. Data from a number of states show that about 75 per cent of those admitted are discharged within the first year.

Kentucky Farm Bureau Fed.

So often we hear that farmers are getting rich, especially on the commodities produced for human consumption. It must be downright discouraging and disheartening to a housewife—with several mouths to feed and limited resources with which to buy—to find that a twenty dollar bill exchanges for little more than the groceries she can carry under one arm. How much do we pay for food? Quite a bit, we sometimes think.

On the other hand, figures indicate that we're paying very little more than we did back in the 47-49 period. In dollars and cents, today's food bill is higher—up 20 cents from 1947-49 but the price tag still comes to only one dollar and eight cents per day for each American.

Looking at it another way, the food bill of the average worker around 1947 amounted to 26 per cent of his take-home pay, while today's worker buys the same quality and quantity for six per cent less.

According to figures recently released, an hour of factory work ten years ago bought 2 1/2 pounds of chuck roast, 20 eggs, one 6 1/2 quart of milk. Today an hour's labor will buy 3 1/2 pounds of chuck roast, 42 eggs, or more than 8 quarts of milk.

Considering that food markets have diversified—in the interest of providing economy and convenience to customers—to the point of stocking and retailing phonograph records, its quite difficult to differentiate the true food items from those that are not. It's very conceivable, therefore, that the grocery list which captured the twenty dollar bill we mentioned earlier could have included items such as toothpaste, silk stockings, household cleaners, table napkins, magazines, and on and on.

IAN FLEMING'S Greatest Thriller THUNDERBALL

CHAPTER 17
JAMES BOND'S taxi had arrived at the airport. Bond told the driver to wait and walked into the long low entrance hall just as the arrival of Larkin's flight was being announced.

He knew there would be the usual delay for customs and immigration. He went to the souvenir shop and bought a newspaper. It was still leading with the loss of the Vindicator aircraft. Bond was reading when a quiet voice in his ear said, "007? Meet Me. 000."

Bond swung round. It was Felix Leiter!

Leiter, his C.I.A. companion on some of the most thrilling cases in Bond's career, grinned and thrust the steel book that was his right hand under Bond's arm. "Take it easy, friend. I'll tell you when we get out of here. Bags are out front. Let's go."

Bond said, "Well, damn! You old so-and-so! Did you know it was going to be me?"

"Sure. C.I.A. knows all."

At the entrance Leiter had his luggage, which was considerable, put aboard Bond's taxi and told the driver to take it to the Royal Bahamian. A man standing beside an undistinguished-looking black sedan left the car and came up. "Mr. Larkin? I'm from the car rental company. This is the car you ordered. We hope she's what you want. You did specify something conventional."

Leiter glanced casually at the car. "Looks all right. I just want a car that'll go. I'm here to do property work—not jazz it up."

"May I see your New York license, sir? Right. Then if you'll just sign here . . . and I'll make a note of the number of your Diner's Club card. When you go, leave the car anywhere you like and just notify us. We'll collect it. Have a good holiday, sir."

They got into the car. Bond took the wheel. When they were out of the airport Bond said, "Now go ahead and tell. Last time we met you were with Pinkerton. What's the score?"

"Drafted. Just plain drafted. Hell, anyone would think there was a war on. You see, James, once you've worked for C.I.A., you're automatically put on the reserve of officers when you leave. Unless you've been cashiered for not eating the code book under fire or something. And apparently my chief friend didn't have the men to go round when the President sounded the fire alarm. So I and twenty or so other guys were just pulled in—drop everything, twenty-four hours to report."

"Hell! I thought the Russians had landed! And then they tell me the score and to pack my bathing trunks and my spade and bucket and come on down to Nassau. So of course I gripped like hell. So then they unbuckled and told me I was to team up with you down here and I thought maybe if that chief of yours, N or M or whatever you call him, had sent you down here there might be something cooking in the pot after all. So I picked up the gear you asked for from Admin., packed the bow and arrows instead of the spade and bucket, and here I am. And that's that. Now you tell, you old sleuth. Hell, it's good to see you."

Bond took Leiter through the whole story, point by point from the moment he had been summoned to M's office the morning before. When he came to the shooting outside his headquarters, Leiter stopped him.

"Now what do you make of that, James? In my book that's a pretty funny coincidence. Have you been fooling around with anybody's wife lately? Sounds more like around the Loop in Chicago than a mile or so from Piccadilly."

Bond said seriously, "It makes no sense to me, and none to anyone else. The only man who might have had it in for me, recently that is, is a crazy man I met down at a sort of clinic place I had to go on some blasted medical grounds."

Bond, to Leiter's keen pleasure, rather sheepishly gave details of his "cure" at Shrubslands. "I bowled this man out as a member of a Chinese Tong, one of their secret societies, the Red Lightning Tong. He must have heard me getting the gun on his outfit from Records—on an open line from a call box in the place. Next thing, he damned near managed to murder me. Just for a lark, and to get even, I did my best to roast him alive." Bond gave the details. "Nice quiet place, Shrubslands. You'd be surprised how carrot juice seems to affect people."

"Where was this lunatic asylum?"

"Place called Washington. Modest little place compared with yours. Not far from Brighton."

"And the letter was posted from Brighton?"

"That's the hell of a long one. I'll try another. One of the points our chips brought up was that if a plane was to be stolen at night and landed at night, a full moon would be the hell of an aid to the job. But the plane was taken five days after the full. Just supposing your roast chicken was the letter-sender. And supposing the roasting forged him to delay sending the letter while he recovered. His employers would be pretty angry. Yes?"

A crucial decision has to be made by Felix Leiter and James Bond all by themselves. The story continues here tomorrow.

Give Children Anger Outlets

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI)—Children's outbursts of anger are usually the result of frustrations built up because of their limited skills and abilities, reports Mrs. Marguerite Duval.

The Penn State University extension family life specialist offered this advice to parents: "Instead of trying to stop outbursts of anger, help the children to channel their anger into more mature channels of expression. Let a child kick a football instead of his sister. And provide him with interesting but not offensive words to use when he is angry."
